Complicity is a new series of work by environmental artist Liz McGowan. The exhibition is open from 03 June to 04 July, 2026. Displayed in Contemporary and Country's viewing room in King's Lynn, it is the first time this beautiful series has been seen together.

Liz McGowan began the work during lockdown in the early 2020s, a time when we all fell back on resources close to home. At the back of her studio store room she found a small bag of clinker - crystallised soot from her chimney - sparkling, velvety black, and poisonous. Liz re-appraised this noxious resource acknowledging her personal complicity in the climate crisis - reasoning its use as follows: "by applying delicate life forms from around me onto its surface - lichen, cobwebs, tiny rodents teeth/scapulae, and ground mussel shells."

Contemporary and Country (C&C) showcases small collections of work by leading artists and makers with a connection to East Anglia. Our VIEWING ROOMS at Woolmarket House are located in central King's Lynn - exhibits change every month, see website for details.
