ROCK PAPER SCISSORS

Contemporary and Country's (C&C) latest pop-up exhibition ROCK PAPER SCISSORS encompasses art and handmade objects fashioned with the process of their making in mind. We open alongside an exhibition by sculptor Tony Cragg.

Rock Paper Scissors refers to the childhood game of chance where material properties prescribe the outcome of each playful exchange between two players, with the material choice made by one player winning the point. The artists and makers contributing to C&C's latest exhibition at Houghton Hall Stables show how they exploit material qualities during the production process to create an original and unique work of art.

Carved stone bowls, paper cuts, clever collages, poured paintings, hand built porcelain vessels, hand woven baskets, welded and sand-cast sculptures, hand blown glass, tactile turned wooden bowls and hand-hewn wooden platters acknowledge their material origins. Each piece reveals the alchemy that occurs between creative intent, material choice and dexterous fabrication.

Artists and makers contributing to C&C projects live and work in non-metropolitan, rural locations in the east of England. They have a strong connection with or include the natural world in their subject matter. Everything exhibited will be for sale or available via C&C's online shop. There will be 40+ artists and makers, 11 of whom are new* to C&C:
